Description:

IGV tracks a market-cap-weighted index of US and Canadian software companies.

Fund Insight:

IGV provides diverse exposure to the North American software industry. It caps individual security weights at 8.5% to provide more diverse exposure to a concentrated industry. The index redistributes its portfolio away from tech giants into smaller, more growth-oriented software companies. Canadian firms are included but make up only a small portion of the portfolio. It's a sensible approach for investors who want exposure to the software industry with subdued concentrations. The fund changed indexes on December 24, 2018. The new index is functionally identical but includes specific companies by name (Activision Blizzard, EA, Snap, Take-Two Interactive, and Zynga). These companies were reclassified into the new Communications Services sector at the end of 2018 and would otherwise have been removed from the fund. Stocks are reviewed semiannually in June and December, and weight capping are applied quarterly starting in March.

Description:

XOP tracks an equal-weighted index of companies in the US oil & gas exploration & production space.

Fund Insight:

XOP offers an equal-weighted approach to oil and gas exploration and production. Based on the GICS classification, the fund provides exposure to the oil and gas exploration and production segment of the S&P Total Market Index, the parent index, which includes Integrated Oil & Gas, Oil & Gas Exploration & Production, and Oil & Gas Refining & Marketing. Equal weighting provides diversified exposure to an industry normally dominated by a few big names, but also produces a bias to small- and midcaps. The index is reviewed and rebalanced quarterly. Prior to Oct. 31, 2025 the Issuer did not use the branding of State Street in the fund name.

Description:

IBB tracks the performance of a modified market-cap-weighted index of US biotechnology companies listed on US exchanges.

Fund Insight:

IBB tracks an index of US biotechnology companies listed on the major US exchanges. This includes companies engaged in the research and development of therapeutic treatments but are not focused on the commercialization and mass production of pharmaceutical drugs. This also includes companies that are engaged in the production of tools or systems that enable biotechnology processes. IBB includes companies of all capitalizations, and weights using a modified market-cap methodology. Individual holdings are subject to capping requirements, 8% on the five largest constituents and 4% for the remaining. The index is rebalanced quarterly and fully reconstituted annually in December. Prior to June 21, 2021, the fund was named iShares Nasdaq Biotechnology ETF and tracked the NASDAQ Biotechnology Index.

Description:

ARKG is an actively managed fund that targets companies involved in the genomics industry.

Fund Insight:

ARKG reaches across multiple sectors and geographies for companies that the advisor believes will benefit from innovations in the genomics-related industry. Such companies are those that may develop, produce or enable targeted therapeutics, bioinformatics, stem cells or molecular diagnostics. The reality is almost all of its holdings are in US healthcare-related companies, with biotech naturally leading the way. This is a niche fund which employs an actively-managed strategy. hence investors should look closely at where the fund makes its investments. The weights of the top five

Description:

IHE tracks a broad-based, cap-weighted index of US pharmaceutical companies.

Fund Insight:

IHE tracks a broad index of US pharmaceutical companies. The fund provides exposure to the manufacturers of prescription or over-the-counter drugs, such as aspirin, cold remedies and birth control pills. The index also includes vaccine producers. IHE may also include companies of all sizes, ranging from large- to small-cap. The index weights its constituents by market cap, with a cap of up to 22.5% per individual company and is rebalanced quarterly. IHE uses a sampling strategy that involves investing in a representative sample of securities that collectively has an investment profile similar to that of an applicable underlying index. Index components are selected on an annual basis.

Objectives of the Sector Allocation Model

We aim to create a systematic approach to sector allocation that our members can easily grasp and use to outperform the market in the long run.

Systematic Approach – Although our Sector Allocation model reflects our expectations for the future stock market, we have designed this model as a systematic approach. This will reduce the influence of personal intuition or judgment on the results. Importantly, this offers consistency, making it easier for our members to distinguish the differences between this month's allocations and those of previous months. Specifically, they can clearly discern what changes have led to our adjustments in sector weighting.

Understandability - We strive for simplicity and transparency. By establishing clear steps and guidelines, anyone involved can easily comprehend how weights are determined and why certain decisions are made. We have refrained from introducing new jargon or overly complex systems. Our objective is to make all aspects understandable, from the qualitative logic behind sector-weighting decisions to the quantitative process of producing the final sector weights.

Versatility – We aim to cover both short-term and long-term strategies, as well as both active and passive approaches, with our new model. While our macro team predominantly focuses on long-term strategies, we do not want to neglect short-term dynamics. Our new sector allocation model, akin to our acclaimed Granny Shot stock list, merges both our long-term sector perspectives with short-term market technical dynamics. In its design, we also took into account the preferences of some members who require their sector allocations to vary only within certain limitations from the standard sector weightings. The final model therefore encompasses passive index tracking and our subjective sector strategies. In the future, we hope to make the ratio between active and passive approaches adjustable, allowing members to input their desired ratios to produce personalized sector weighting recommendations.
